Meeting point at 9 o'clock in Piazza Antirazzista. From there everybody will get on their own to Nonantola, where we will visit the Villa Emma exhibiton, opened in 2001. The exhibition features documents, photographs, and maps documenting the journey of 73 young Jews from Lesno Brdo (Slovenia) to Nonantola (Italy) and from Nonantola (Italy) through Bex (Switzerland) to Palestine. They fled persecutions and the war all through Europe and finally got to Nonantola, in particular to Villa Emma. Here they were helped by the people of the town and they could study, work, and play, that is to say they could lead, if only for a couple of months, a normal life.

Debate: "The Role of Football Fans in Social Protest Movements"

Whether during the Gezi protests in Turkey, around Tahir Square in Egypt or on the streets of Brazil and Ukraine right now – one thing that these movements all have in common is that organised football supporters as a social group have played a major role in it. We want to get the perspective of supporters from these countries and hear what happened and what is still happening and what the involvement of the fan groups in the social protests there is all about, and what consequences this involvement currently has for fans in these countries far beyond the social protests themselves. Chairman: James M. Dorsey (author/blogger on Middle East football, Singapore). Fan representatives from Turkey, Ukraine, Egypt and Greece.

Interview on Radio Asterisco with Adelmo Cervi, who will be presenting his book Io che conosco il tuo cuore, telling the story of his father Aldo, who was a member of the partisan group "Cervi" together with his six brothers. Adelmo wrote this book to commemorate his father's story and to explain that his father was first of all a man and not merely a myth from history.

16:00 Piazza Antirazzista

On Radio Asterisco presentation of the book Un giorno triste così felice. Sócrates, viaggio nella vita di un rivoluzionario by Lorenzo Iervolino. This book tells the story of a football player, who went down in history for being one of the most original interpreters of the so called "futebol" art. He had extraordinary physical and technical characteristics and he saw football more as an amusing pastime than as a job, "a microcosm in the macrocosm that is society". It is no coincidence that this man, also known as "Doutor" (the doctor) managed to create something unique in the sport sector thanks to football. In the Eighties he created a political workshop which affected the whole country of Brasil, which had been under a military dictatorship for two decades.

More than 1.200 foreign workers in Qatar have died on the construction sites since Qatar was awarded the contract to host WC2022. Human Rights NGOs report about attacks, abuse and harassment against Lgbtq people and activists in Russia, a country which hosted the Olympic Games in Sochi and is due to host the next World Cup in 2018.

Chair: Martino Simcick Arese (Tifo Mag, Canada), Daniela Wurbs ((FSE, Germany).

Speakers: Abdes Ouaddou (professional footballer who played in Qatar, Morocco), Manuela Claysset ((UISP, Italy), representative from Queer Football Fansclub (Europe), Ivan Grozny (Sport alla Rovescia; Italy), football supporters from Partizan Minsk (Belarus), Mogens Kirkeby (ISCA), Paolo Poggiati, former president Amnesty International Italia

Sixth annual congress of European supporters, promoted by the Football Supporters Europe (Fse) – part 1

14:00-17:30 EFFC Arena del tifo

Debate: "Divided we fall – National Fan Organisations Networking Meeting"

National fan organisations from all over Europe will come together and discuss how to work better with each other, to share experience and learn from each other. Further details on speakers and the workshops are available in the #EFFC Pocket Guide! Ask at the Info Point!

14:00-17:30 EFFC Piazza del tifo

Debate: "Our match is inside the stands! Choreo and Support Arrangements"

Active supporting, chanting and choreographies are an important part of fan culture. These forms of expression, however, are increasingly restricted. Football fans and members of ultra groups from several European countries will share their experiences and problems with the organisation of choreo and support arrangements and together, we'll see whether there are some common solutions to shared problems. Further details on speakers and the workshops are available in the #EFFC Pocket Guide! Ask at the Info Point!

14:00-17:30 Piazza Antirazzista

Debate: "Keep Football Dirty! Celebrate Rivalries, Fight Discrimination"

Racism and other forms of discrimination are on the rise in football stadia in many countries again. How can we as anti-racist fans fight against this in modern football that is being commercialized to a degree, where there is less and less space for traditional fan culture, and where you are already punished for singing against the opposing team for "territorial discrimination", like in Italy? How does this development affect our work as fans against discrimination inside and outside the stands? Anti-racist fans and ultras from Italy, Sweden, Croatia and others will discuss about this problem. Further details on speakers and the workshops are available in the #EFFC Pocket Guide! Ask at the Info Point!

14:00-17:30 Bar Gianni

Debate: "Watching football is not a crime! Repression affecting fans: problems and solutions"
Football supporters all over Europe are facing problems with rising repression and it seems that more and more safety and security measures are designed to criminalise all fans. It can be repression from the police, from the clubs, or from the national football association. How should supporters fight against this? Are there any good examples of fans taking the initiative and managed to improve their situation, e.g. in relation to the policing at football matches? Further details on speakers and the workshops are available in the #EFFC Pocket Guide! Ask at the Info Point!

14:00-17:30 Piazza del Tifo 2

For a couple of years now, the Italian Football Federation and Italian football clubs are in the process of recruiting Supporter Liaison Officers (SLOs). It is the job of an SLO to establish a continuous dialogue with the fanbase of their respective club. The workshop will be an informal discussion for Italian fans. It should provide an update on the current project status in Italy, and open up a discussion with the fans at the Mondiali about how the role can be implemented in Italy. Further details on speakers and the workshops are available in the #EFFC Pocket Guide! Ask at the Info Point!
